Storyboards

A storyboard can be loosely defined as a visual script. That visual script is a sort of comic strip, based on a written script. A good storyboard clearly and explicitly explains what happens in a film (for instance), where it happens, and how it happens.

There are several websites that allow you to do storyboards.  One example is:

Storyboard Example

The storyboard example on the previous page was produced by professional designer. Such results are very time-consuming and require specialized drawing skills. For the purposes of this class, you should use the storyboard template on the following page and the results should look something like the example below.

1. TRUCK DRIVING TO FARM. MISHA PENSIVELY GAZING AT HOME

2. FATHER HUGS MISHA

3. MISHA CLIMBING INTO TRUCK OR THROWING BAG IN BACK

4. FATHER LOOKING BACK TO MISHA, SISTER WAVING

5. HAND SHUTS FLAP ON BACK OF TRUCK

6. TRUCK STARTS TO DRIVE OFF

7. SISTER RUNS AFTER TRUCK & THROWS DIARY TO MISHA

8. SISTERS POV AS BOOK FLIES TO MISHA WHO CATCHES IT

9. TRUCK DRIVES OFF INTO DISTANCE
